

First Encounter of Translators from UNIACC

June 24, 2008

The UNIACC Bilingual School of Translations and Interpretations, headed by its Director, Liuba Libedinsky, held the First Encounter of Translators, aimed at closing the gap between its students and the profession they will develop in the near future. For that, four well-known translators from this country spoke on the importance of the Chilean Association of Translators and Interpreters and the benefits existing in belonging to a non-government organization whose aim is to protect the interests and regulate how the profession is exercised, encouraging perfectionism among its members and effectively contributing toward the country's culture, economic and social development.

Carmen Jirón, Director of MundoChile, also took part, speaking on "What a translator should not do in his profession" followed by a debate with the guests on the benefits and problems of online translations, so easy to access nowadays on the Net.
